Why Look At Pot Stocks Now?

Every so often you find a super hot industry that’s attracting investors like no other… And right now, the Pot Industry is taking the market by storm.

It all started about 3 years ago when Colorado led the nation by decriminalizing the use of Pot for recreational purposes.

Medical Marijuana became legal.

Recreational Marijuana became legal…

And Cannabis sales went through the roof. Shortly thereafter, the state reported $50 million in tax revenue from Pot sales alone!

Then came the 2016 election.

Not only did “The Donald” sweep into power, but marijuana initiatives across the country were voted in!

A record 35 states voted on some aspect of marijuana, and as it now stands… in 30 states, smoking weed is legal for either medical or recreational reasons.

Currently eight states and Washington, D.C., have legalized recreational marijuana!

Those eight states are:

Alaska, California, Colorado, Massachusetts, Maine, Nevada, Oregon and Washington.

Before you start panning for gold in this “Green Rush”, realize Marijuana is still illegal on the federal level. And the Feds can put you away for holding, using, transporting, or selling the stuff. For now, they’re looking the other way.

Yet, the legalization movement is picking up steam…

Trends In Pot Stocks

The legalization movement has created a lot of interest from investors. They can smell a growing industry a mile away… and the profits can be huge!

So it seems like barely a day goes by that I’m not asked for my favorite Pot Penny Stock.

To be honest, I don’t have one.

The recent hype drove investors to bid up stock prices through the roof. And that’s never a good thing. So, I decided to bide my time and see what the market shook out.

Just look at this pot stock chart and you’ll see the craziness…

For a time, the biggest shareholder was a billionaire… but not for long. As you can see, the hype in the industry got a little crazy.

But now the industry is starting to mature… and while Pot sales are still a risky business, it’s becoming a more legitimate industry.

There are lots of public companies out there… and while I still think we’re too early to pick a winner… but no harm in starting to look around… Right!?!?

So, I took a few days and put together a quick list of a number of pot stocks for you to be aware of.

Is that all of them? I’ve got no idea… I didn’t think i’d find that many to begin with! I’m sure I missed one or two… but either way, this is a great place to start...

101 Pot Stock Ideas… What’s the Best Pot Stock Now?

So, I know what you’re thinking… which of the list above is the Best Pot Stock?

I have no idea…

I’ll tell you this much… just the limited research I did to add a name to the list uncovered a bunch of red flags. Some of these companies have been labeled with the skull and crossbones by the OTC markets group.

Others had junky websites… still others had no revenue or earnings… Some were nothing more than a press release (no real business… just an idea)!

Needless to say, there’s lots of research to do on these Pot Stock companies before you want to put a single dollar to work.

Despite the issues, I like the idea of the Pot Industry. But there are very few high quality pot stocks to buy.

The Pot Industry is like the dotcom industry back around 2000. Every company is claiming to be in the industry. The great growth rate is attracting both legitimate businesses and scammers alike.

So, how do you invest and keep yourself safe?

You use common sense.

You look for Pot Stocks with real businesses (not just great ideas). You look for businesses with revenue… and hopefully income!

You look for companies with real products and assets.

Check those boxes and you’ll screen out most of the garbage Pot Companies.

A Final Word

We hope you enjoyed our list of Marijuana companies.

To say I’m excited to watch their progress would be an understatement!
